VI. Answer the following questions:

3 x 5 = 15

1. Why was Roopa sorry for her behaviour? Do you think Kaki forgave her?
Ans: Roopa witnessed with her own eyes how Kaki was forced to resort to search for scraps of food among dirty leaf plates like beggars. It made her realize the heartlessness with which she and her husband had treated her. Roopa acknowledged that it was Kaki's wealth that she had given to them, which allowed them to execute their son's wedding in such a lavish manner. Yet it was the same person who went hungry in all the hustle bustle of the wedding. To make matters worse she was humiliated before a crowd and treated like an animal. Roopa, who was a God-fearing woman, feared for the repercussions of such an action and hence she was sorry for her earlier behaviour.

Kaki forgave Roopa the moment Roopa gave her food and joyfully began to eat.

2. "Lawrence Lemieux restored the dignity of sports," How did he do it?
Ans: The 1988 Olympics saw few sportsmen being disqualified for using performance enhancing drugs. It was a matter of shame for sports and the spirit of sportsmanship. However when Lawrence Lemieux chose to give up his chance at the Olympics to save the life of a fellow sailor, who was not even a participant, that act alone restored the dignity of sports. Then again, knowing that he had given up his chance at any title, Lawrence Lemieux returned to finish the race, showing his dedication to the sports.
