Honesty

One day I was going to the park to play. I was very unhappy because my mother had refused to give me extra pocket money. I really wanted to buy the toy truck that I saw in the shop. I was worried that it would get sold out by the time I arrange for the money. I was walking down the street, dragging my feet with my head down, feeling disappointed. I suddenly saw a red coloured purse. I immediately picked it up and looked around. There was nobody around.

I opened the purse and saw that it contained a lot of money. It was enough to buy my toy truck. I was filled with excitement. I went to the store and as I pulled out the money from the purse a diary dropped out of it. I opened the diary and found the address of the owner in it. I started feeling very guilty as I thought to myself about the owner. The owner too must have had plans with his or her money. I realized that this was wrong and I must resist this temptation.

I quickly ran home and told my mother about everything. Together we went in search of the owner and handed over the purse and its belongings to him. The owner was so happy and grateful that he gave me a nice gift as a reward. Later, that evening my father bought me the toy truck as he was extremely proud of my decision.
