Mahalaya is an auspicious occasion seven days before Durga puja. This day is observed as a holiday all over West Bengal. It comes in the month of September or October. It marks the beginning of the Durga Puja festivities. It is on this day the eyes of the Durga idol are painted.

Mahalaya is the day when goddess Durga is believed to have descended on Earth to destroy all evils. In Bengal on this day, traditionally people wake up early to recite hymns. On this day we give offerings to our forefathers. People also tune to radio program called Mahishasura Mardini early in the morning. Every year the story of goddess Durga and the demon king Mahisasura is narrated which is also a reminder of celebrating victory over evil.
